EASTERN NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

Effects of the Panic on Eastern Manufacturing Interests.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The effects of the financial troubles are beginning to be felt among the working class. In many trades a large number of operatives were discharged at the close of the week for want of employment for them or want of funds to pay them. Three shoe manufactories closed on Saturday night indefinitely. Employers in one establishment offered work at reduced wages but the men declined to work for wages below those established by the Crispin Society and were consequently discharged. Nearly every trade is affected similarly.

Financial Matters.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—It is rumored that Wm. H. Vanderbilt Jr. has sailed for Europe to negotiate $2,000,000 of the New York Central bonds still remaining out of the recent issue. The $10,000,000 matter of the Lake Shore loan to the Union Trust Company is not yet attested. According to a statement of the directors a difficulty has arisen in negotiating notes of the Commodore. Bankers who had agreed to discount them now refuse to do so unless the capital of the Union Trust Company is enlarged by the payment of an additional million dollars. A full list of securities held by the creditors of George Grinnell & Co. is published. They are mainly shares of the Lake Shore and Northwestern with a dash of New York Central.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 27.—At a meeting on Saturday at which all the furnaces in this city or vicinity were represented, it was voted unanimously to reduce wages ten per cent. on and after to-day. It was the opinion of a majority that it would be very difficult to keep furnaces in blast, and that a further reduction might be necessary to prevent suspension.

Financial Difficulties Imminent in Berlin.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—A letter from Berlin shows that that city has not only been affected by the American panic but is preparing for one of its own scandals. Irregularity and insecurity in every branch of business prodigality and waste among the middle classes, great suffering among the poor, a swelling of emigration and all forms of pecuniary distress hang over the city and it is all said to be owing to nothing less than speculation.

A Moscow letter says the Russian Government has been obliged to order arrests among the Roman Catholic clergy in the Diocese of Chalm [illegible]. A politico-religious conspiracy has been discovered among the clergy.

A foreign letter says: "A man named Escapard died a few days ago about whom a curious history is related. In 1863 he was convicted of the murder of a nurse in the little republic of Andorra. It was the first murder ever committed in that happy valley and the grand council ordered an estimate to be made of the expenses of hanging the culprit, which amounted for cords, gibbet, coffin and burial to 68f. 40c. The council found they had no authority for the expenditure, and no one wished to get up a subscription to hang a man. Escapard was hence conducted to the frontier of the republic, and informed he was at liberty to go and be hanged elsewhere. He found his way to Paris and lived as a carver in metals under the name of Benoit."

A Reading paper gravely relates the following incident of the panic in that city: Quite a touching affair occurred in the [illegible] Savings Bank on Saturday afternoon which afforded a lesson to some men who were in the bank at the time. Two little boys each eight or nine years of age came into the institution and stated to the cashier that they heard the bank wanted money, and that they had come to give them some. Each had a bank book and fifty cents. The money was duly deposited and the little lads left. Soon thereafter another little boy, accompanied by his aged grandmother, entered the bank and deposited fifty-three cents also to help along the [bank].

THE FOREST GROVE UNPLEASANTNESS.

CITIZEN HAS AN OPINION WHICH HE EXPRESSES THE SAME.

FOREST GROVE, Oct. 27, 1873.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Sore-headism is on the increase in this unusually quiet town. Hunn and Bewlby you know have been regarded as having sore heads, and now to these we must add the editor of the Independent. His head is remarkably sore. I suppose it makes but little difference what it is that makes a man's head sore, so that it is really sore. And however much we may differ about the soreness of Hunn and Bowlby there can be no dispute about the soreness of the youthful editor of the Independent. The soreness of the former is supposed to have arisen from having been removed from office, while the soreness of the latter was caused by his unfortunately running against a gentleman's cane. The cane however proved too hard for the integuments of his youthful scalp and after repeating it a few times, and until he became entirely satisfied, he turned upon his heels and ran, it is said at the rate of about 2:20, crying "murder" at every step. The cane followed him maintaining, for some time an alarming proximity to his head. Take it altogether, it was the most amusing incident that has ever occurred in this town. The race was a closely contested one but the youthful editor came out a little ahead.

Seriously. It will be recollected that some time ago the editor of the Independent made an attack in his paper upon the private character of the editor of the Salem Mercury and it is said that he refused to give the latter any of the evidence upon which he based the attack, or to give any satisfaction whatever, and that the editor of the Mercury had no alternative but to submit to the slander or take satisfaction out of the hide of the slanderer. He chose the latter course. And while the people here disapprove of any violation of law and believe that the pugilistic editor of the Mercury should be punished just a little for coming here on the Sabbath and disturbing the quiet of the church going people especially as they were just emerging from their place of worship—yet I presume the number here is very small who do not feel a consciousness that the youthful editor deserved all he received. It should have been a cowhide instead of a cane with which the castigation was given.

It is pretty well understood here that the editor of the Independent was furnished money from Portland in order to use his paper for the purpose of assailing the character of those who were unwilling to uphold the suits of J. H. Mitchell. And hence for some time past he has been making his attacks upon citizens of this county whose public and private character will compare favorably with the character of any one. And they have quietly submitted to it rather than bear the odium incident to a street fight.

He is to be pitied, however, and perhaps those who know him will be willing to throw the mantle of charity around him. Any young man is to be pitied who is so far lost to all self respect as to assail the private character of old gray headed men, when those men have done him no wrong and when all the charges he makes are without any foundation. I trust this little castigation he has received will serve as a wholesome lesson to him and be the means of producing a radical reform in his moral character. CITIZEN.

SMITH AND THE BOOK OF GENESIS.

THE RECENT ASSYRIAN DISCOVERIES.

Mr. George Smith writes to the London Daily Telegraph: The collection brought home by the expedition confided to my charge includes over 400 separate inscriptions beside various objects of art, domestic economy, implements, etc. The inscriptions throw new light on the history, politics, astronomy, mythology, geography and language of Ancient Assyria, but it would be tedious to your readers to inflict on them a critical and minute examination of all these texts. I will, therefore select a few as characteristic specimens of the collection and I shall commence with a text that has attracted most attention—that namely, which belongs to the Deluge series. When last year I published a translation of the text in question I was obliged to note with regret that in the first column of the inscription there were about fifteen lines entirely lost. The lacuna occurred at a point of high interest to students and the world in general—for the divine instructor of Sisit was about to give orders for the embarkation in the ark. It is needless therefore to say with what satisfaction I lighted upon the welcome tablet which fills up this very important gap. The fragment I found during the Daily Telegraph expedition belongs to the first column of the Deluge series of inscriptions. It continues the speech of the good Hea the commencement of which is on the portion of tablet already in the museum. On the fragment of the old collection Hea tells Sisit to warn the world because of the wickedness of the people on the Daily Telegraph portion Hea continues by predicting the flood and then commands Sisit as follows:

"On the coming of the flood which I shall send thou shalt enter into the ship and the door of the ship turn; thou shalt send into the midst of it thy corn, thy furniture and goods, thy gold and silver, thy male slaves and thy female slaves, the sons of the army, the beasts of the field, the animals of the field and all that [illegible] [illegible]. They shall spread and they shall guard the door of the ship. Sisit attended and opened his mouth and said to the god Hea his lord." Five lines of the speech of Sisit follow this. They are too mutilated for exact translation and then in the answer Sisit refers to the difficulties in the way of the work. I need not dwell upon the interest of placing this account side by side with that contained in the book of Genesis.

A New York paper of recent date says that one of the most extensive grain dealers in the country recently stated that exporters were taking every bushel of grain he could obtain. His house alone is receiving 100,000 bushels of wheat every day and it is immediately sent abroad. The people of Europe want bread and they will get it if they are compelled to send gold here for it. He concluded by saying that the prospects of the produce dealers were good. No doubt of it and much better perhaps than the prospects of the farmers.

Five hundred casks of cement and one thousand casks of sand will be used on the foundation. It will require three-fourths of a million of bricks for its construction, and cost about $30,000.

In the raffle for the race mare Emma McCormick at Boise City on the 21st, the highest throws were for Governor Bennett and Alex Orchard, of Placerville, neither of them being present. Eph Ball threw for the Governor and little Jimmy Turner threw for Orchard, each throwing 45. It now remains for the Governor and Orchard to throw off or sell out one or the other.

Considerable discussion is likely to ensue on the question.

A House Joint Memorial was presented relative to land grants to N. P. R. R. north of Tacoma, and laid on the table subject to the order of the House.

The Speaker having nothing else to do just then announced for the edification of the House that he was about to attach his autograph to certain bills.

H. J. R. No. 9—Relative to visiting and inquiring into the condition of the Territorial University (not to include a report on the morality of Seattle) was read three times and passed.

After a full examination of the Rinquest Shackle (a new bracelet invented for the use of convicts), the bill to purchase the right to the same was passed.

A lengthy act providing for the formation of corporations was also passed.

The act relating to Justices of the Peace was laid on the table till Monday.

A substitute to H. B. No. 49—An Act to amend the road law, was reported back by the committee adopted by the House, and referred to Committee on Roads and Highways.

A substitute was reported back by committee for H. B. No. 18, in relation to licenses, the substitute providing that the County Commissioners may grant a license for the sale of spirituous liquors or intoxicating beverages, on receiving the sum of $300, with a bond for $500 to keep their drinking house in a quiet and peaceable way; provision is also made that where there is but little business doing in such drinking house the license may cost not less than $100, nor more than $300, as the Commissioners may see fit; any one selling without license shall be fined in a sum not exceeding $50, and not less than $5; that licenses may be granted for six, nine or twelve months; that all fines collected under this act shall be applied to county or school purposes, excepting Olympia, where it shall be paid into the treasury for town purposes. The bill was read twice, laid on the table and ordered printed.

H. B. No. 83—An act to provide for the election of County Commissioners and defining their duties, was laid on the table for further action.

A substitute for H. B. No. 81, in relation to collection of debts in certain cases, was reported back by the Committee and passed.

The act in relation to trials by Jury was laid on the table.

The House concurred in the Council amendments to H. B. relative to conferring title to the Seattle and Walla Walla Railway of certain tide lands near Eliot's Bay.

Also amendments relative to bill for incorporating City of Port Townsend.

But for fear their action might be considered monotonous they refused to concur in Council amendments to the Oyster Bill.

A memorial was presented praying for a grant of certain coal land to Wm. Packard, an old pioneer on this coast who, having read the history of the old Abbe in the "Count of Monte Christo" refuses to give up his treasure until Congress grants him 300 acres of his discovery. May the poor old man's prayer be granted!

Council Bill was introduced changing the name of Thomas J. Harrington to Thomas J. McCaw. Passed.

An act was also introduced for the relief of John McFail but the house being ravenously hungry (2 P. M. without lunch), the bill was lost, and an adjournment took place till Monday.

A JAMAICA WENCH ON THE WITNESS STAND.

Elizabeth Johnson was the first witness called and in response a strapping wench of the Day & Martin hue strode up to the witness stand. As the oath was administered her open mouth exhibited the loss of two front teeth in either jaw. Her gown was white, and the shawl slung over her shoulders was of the brightest pattern obtainable. Perched on her forehead was a sailor-boy hat surrounded by a gay plaid ribbon and from the side a solitary red feather shot itself skyward.

The witness was almost unintelligible, and apparently somewhat under the influence of whisky—a thorough specimen of a low Jamaica darkey, garrulous, excitable, gesticulative and with that peculiar chuckling laugh with a vibratory sympathy on the part of her ample figure sometimes found with this people. Neither Court, counsel nor jury could restrain their smiles at her peculiar actions and speech and especially at the airy manner in which she repudiated any insinuations against her character.

When the defendant's counsel inquired if she had not made some different statements on one point, she indignantly answered:

"No, I don't change de words a bit; I look on de Crouner book what I testify, and I don't told a lie for de nobody."

Q.—Are you not sometimes called the Queen of the Sandwich Islands?

A.—Not much, no sir! Dey call me de Big Sun Flower. Y' hah! I aint no Sandwich Islands Queen. I'm from Kingston, Jamaica. I'm a British subject. I am Sandwich Islands! What I know 'bout dem place? O, go way. I done answer no mo' yo' questions, by de Lord!

On another occasion the defendant's attorney asked:

"Lizzie, were you never arrested?"

A.—Me? Yah! I guess so. But I never was put in de jail for nuffin but fightin—no tellin, no gittin drunk, no nuffin but fightin. If anyone says suntun to me I put a end on em—wah!

Q.—Were you not arrested in Kingston for stealing a Panama hat and selling it for a shilling?

A.—Me! what me? Stealin'! Two bits. Yah yah yah. Wh what ye lookin for? I [illegible] steal a quarter. Rader begin stealin' a quarter. Done! [illegible] you wasn't never cotched up [illegible] frightin'. Get out! I got my eye on you.—S. F. Call, Oct. 21st.

A henpecked gentleman determined to ship with a party of friends against the will of his wife. He was resolved that he would and she that he should not go. He did not go. His friends missed him and just for a lark invaded his residence where they found him and his wife sitting in their chairs fast asleep. He had given her an opiate that he might slip away and she had given him one that he might not.

The proprietors of the Hawkeye deny that that paper is to be removed to Junction.

Dallas is to have a mock Legislature this winter. Most of the Oregon Legislatures are mocks.

A new bridge is in course of construction across the Yamhill river a short distance above Amity under the management of John Taylor.

The farmers of Polk county are busy plowing and sowing; the weather is fine, and everything promises comfort and happiness to the people of Oregon.

About 200,000 bushels of grain has been delivered in Eugene since harvest. Nearly half that amount has been purchased or taken on storage by Kinney & Co's agent in that place.

The editor of the Bedrock Democrat, at Baker City would like to know the whereabouts of Alex Blakely, a printer, so that he can correspond with him on matters of importance to both parties.

The entire population of Newport, Yaquina, recently turned out in pursuit of a small bear cub which, chased by dogs, ran into the town. Bruin was treed and so many guns were fired at him that nothing was left but a little powder-burned fur.

The fisheries at Ellensburg, in Curry county, have caught and put up 1,790 barrels of salmon this fall, and are still at it. On the 15th of October the schooners Klyalmane and Alpha were both loaded and waiting for an opportunity to go to sea.

The Circuit Court convenes at Eugene next Monday. There are but few [cases] on the docket, and most of them of little importance. Lane county has probably less litigation in proportion to her wealth and population than any other county in Oregon.

A large band of Indians have been encamped along the river a short distance above Eugene during the past week, racing playing "bigny, and gambling very much as white people do at Fairs. People at Eugene are inquisitive enough to want to know whether these Indians all have papers from their [agents].

Some of the Eugene bloods got up a race last Saturday between their favorite and another horse from Coast Fork, in which the Eugene horse got badly beaten. They who lost their money claimed that there was foul riding, and declined to surrender the [stakes]. For a while there was a fair prospect for as pretty a row as one would wish to see.

The Baker City paper says: "Eastern Oregon may be set down as one of the best stock ranges in the world, and for the growing of all kinds of vegetables it is second to none, and for small-cereal it is as good as the [best], and for fruit we are satisfied, from what we have seen, that there will be no [trouble] to [com]plain. Our fruit is of the best and richest flavor —far surpassing that of the Walla Walla Valley."

THE CARPENTER SCANDAL.

The chapter of scandal, which opened with the disgusting recital of John H. Mitchell's earlier life, and ended with Matthew H. Carpenter's Long Branch "indiscretion," makes up one of the most humiliating periods in the history of the great republic. In the first instance the crimes charged began with advanced youth and ran on through a long series of years up to the very moment in which the criminal entered the Senate of the United States. In the second instance the [illegible] charged was committed in a fash[illegible] the society where intrigues of less ob[illegible] character are not uncommon. [illegible]tor Carpenter's offense does not ap[illegible] those of Senator Mitchell in grosse[illegible] and outrageous indecency.

[illegible] time in July last a correspondent of the New York Tribune wrote a circum[illegible]ntial account of the scandal with which [illegible] Carpenter's name was associated at Long Branch. In that letter it was al[illegible] that the Senator had applied at the [illegible] hotel of the watering place for ac[illegible] for himself and lady. On in[illegible] it was [illegible] that the "lady" referred [illegible] courtesan with whom [illegible] had been traveling. Readers of [illegible] will remember the details [illegible] they were published in [illegible] at the time; we will not repeat [illegible]. Of course, in Wisconsin the Trib[illegible] correspondence excited much dis[illegible]. The [illegible] press seized the [illegible] to berate Carpenter with [illegible] of the most influential [illegible] journals of that State (among [illegible] one or two known to be on particu[illegible] good terms with the Senator) called [illegible] an explanation. His friends [illegible] to appear at once in a card of [illegible] This the honorable gentleman [illegible] not [illegible] to do. But a few indi[illegible] and [illegible] of more [illegible] denounced the story [illegible] and threatened [illegible] a prosecution. To this [illegible] editorially to the [illegible] Carpenter were dis[illegible] a provocation he [illegible] fully prepared to [illegible] made by the cor[illegible] and that that paper was [illegible] in every way, for its [illegible]. To this no answer was made. [illegible] probable that Senator [illegible] have suffered this [illegible] had he been [illegible] explanation of this [illegible] has ever been offered: [illegible] all over the country [illegible] by a [illegible] that when Sen[illegible] leaving Baltimore a [illegible] of that [illegible] wife under his [illegible] on their arrival at [illegible] Senator applied for [illegible] by the proprietor [illegible] the [illegible] was over[illegible] Senator was obliged to [illegible] was claimed that the [illegible] tortured these [illegible] it on the honor[illegible] never claimed, [illegible] able to learn, that [illegible] deputed to [illegible] or sanc[illegible]. Nor has the [illegible] been [illegible] editorial refer[illegible] the Tribune asserted [illegible] truth of the corres[illegible].

[illegible] which says:

[illegible] in Sedatorial [illegible] the [illegible] will not be [illegible] by his [illegible] office of [illegible] of the Senate. They [illegible] may be arranged [illegible] declining, or by con[illegible] a few days at the open[illegible] Let it will be absolutely [illegible] Senator who is pre[illegible] the way in which it [illegible] Ferry, of Michigan, will [illegible] Carpenter."

[illegible] states that Anthony [illegible] dent pro tem.

[illegible] stands, it looks de[illegible] for Senator Carpenter. [illegible] however, that in view of his [illegible] public services, his life hitherto [illegible] immorality, and other [illegible] of importance, all candid [illegible] withhold condemnation until [illegible] is con[illegible] or the charges be [illegible].

[illegible] VERY WEAK EFFORT.

[illegible] seven columns of editorial [illegible] in the Bulletin of yesterday to [illegible] of the repeaters and [illegible]. If one had the fortitude to [illegible] the [illegible] column he might, [illegible] find some adequate answer to [illegible] of corruption and bribery [illegible] the Custom House ring. But the "[illegible] writer" of whom the Bulletin [illegible] doth cry, had not that forti[illegible]. In the fourth column we find an [illegible] entitled "St. John Embleton's [illegible]," in which a faint effort is made to [illegible]erate Judge Denny from the charge that he was present at a meeting held one [illegible] ago last Wednesday night in one of the rooms of Dolph, Bronaugh, Dolph & [illegible], at which meeting the cases of the [illegible] were received and money raised [illegible] their relief. We charged also that the [illegible] of $200 was taken by Judge Denny to the Police Court, whereupon St. John [illegible]bleton was released. To these charges the Bulletin interposes the statement of Judge Denny, which is as follows:

From Judge Denny himself we learn that on his way up town from the Police Office, soon [illegible] the above scene, he was accosted on the [illegible] by Mr. Longfellow, proprietor of the Astor House, who said to him: "Judge Denny, my clerk, Embleton, has been arrested; can you tell me what his bail will be?" Judge D[illegible] replied: "I have just told them at the Police Office. It will be $200, deposited." Longfellow, said: "I don't want to leave my [illegible] alone any longer, if you will wait here a few minutes I will bring you the money." To accommodate him, Judge Denny waited. Longfellow brought the money from his house [illegible] the street, handed it to Judge Denny, and he returned with it the Police Office, had it put in the safe there, and, after ordering Embleton's release, left for his home.

The Bulletin says that Judge Denny de[illegible]ited this bail between 9 and 10 o'clock. The officers on guard say that the bail was deposited between 11 o'clock and mid[illegible]ght. Again one would suppose from [illegible] the above statement that Judge Denny went from the conference directly to the jail. Indeed it is so stated, in substance. The facts are that Judge Denny was in conference in the room referred to until long after 11 o'clock; that when he deposited the $200, he handed the officer, Mr. Collins, his written order, directing the release of St. John Embleton. Now if, as Judge Denny would have us believe, he went directly from the meeting with Longfellow on the street, to the jail, how and where did he prepare that order? The truth is, he wrote the order and received the money in the room alluded to.

The Bulletin tells us that as Judge Denny was going up town he met Longfellow on the street, that Longfellow asked him to remain on the street until he (Longfellow) could get the amount required for Embleton's bail! Perhaps some one will be gullible enough to believe this exceedingly thin yarn. Our Police Judge may be in the habit of waiting on the street and making himself a common carrier for the sake of releasing incarcerated scoundrelism. This is the first occasion on which his accommodating disposition has received the publicity it merits.

All this while several things are noticeable, chiefly this: whenever anything is to be done for the relief of the repeaters, the men who are foremost in tendering their services, are recognized as devoted attaches of the Custom House ring. When Ryan, the repeater, is to be tried, City Attorney Mulkey employs counsel to defend him. When Ryan is to be bailed out, DuBois appears as surety. When St. John Embleton is arrested, Judge Denny takes the trouble to go in person to the prison and order his release. When Lawless and Franklin are to be tried in the Circuit Court, the ring employs counsel for their defense. And when the whole pack of bribers and bribed are to be defended before the public, the Custom House organ, the Bulletin, is chosen for the work. Now we believe in the eternal fitness of things.

PLEASE EXPLAIN.

The editor of the Bulletin must be troubled with indigestion in an aggravated form. His dreams by night are of the most excruciating nature. Here is one of them:

He [the editorial writer of the OREGONIAN] pr[illegible]ed at that period [before the war] to be a pro-slavery man to secure his election to office and right here it is worth while to say that he has never lived, nor could he subsist, without office.

Perhaps our memory is at fault; but certainly at the present writing we do not remember ever to have occupied any office, Federal or State, particularly at the time alluded to. More than that, with the melancholy wrecks of the Custom House ring before us, we should pray to be forever safe from the service which seems to make a sacrifice of manhood and principle necessary to obtain the loaves and fishes of patronage. We cannot really apprehend the drift of the Bulletin's remarks. After it has changed its diet will it please explain?

Southwestern Nebraska has just suffered from one of the most terrific prairie fires of which we have ever heard. An Omaho paper of the 17th inst. says: "The fire originated [illegible] Otoe reservation, and traveled northeast a distance of over twenty-five miles, destroying everything in its path. Near Wilbur, and ten miles south of Cerete, the avalanche of fire approached a school house filled with children, a number of whom rushed out and endeavored to escape. Ten of them were overtaken, and three burned to death, three fatally injured and four others very severely maimed. Most of them were girls, seven or eight years of age. The mother of three of them, in endeavoring to save them, was so terribly burned that she cannot recover. Immense quantities of grain, and many houses and barns were destroyed. Much suffering is feared in consequence."

A cablegram informs us that the sale of the Siecle in the public streets has been forbidden on account of its having published M. Gambetta's recent speech at Perigneaux. M. Bourdellette, deputy mayor of Perigneaux, has been suspended from exercising his office for the space of two months, for having allowed Gambetta to speak at a banquet without making any protest. This is liberty under MacMahon and the Republic. Vive la République! What next?

The New York Evening Post, in arguing against an increase of currency, accepts figures which state the present currency volume to be as follows: Legal tenders, $350,000,000; bank notes, $344,000,000, less $150,000,000 bank reserve—which makes our total circulating medium $550,000,000. Before the war the total currency was $300,000,000, leaving the increase at $160,000,000.

RAISING WHEAT.

The farmers of Oregon need no advice from us as to whether they shall raise all the wheat they can. Before this time thousands of teams are plowing, and the rich soil is rapidly being overturned and made ready for the seed. The Willamette valley, and every other valley that is located on the waters of the Columbia, or in the State of Oregon, are essentially wheat-producing, and so well adapted are they to wheat culture that no season has ever known them to fail of producing a good yield. For all that, wheat culture is exhausting to the virtue of the soil, and wheat shipment to immense extent is to a degree a means of ultimate impoverishment, which can only be delayed by prudent and thorough culture, and can only be avoided by judicious rotation of crops. This latter is impossible for us to accomplish as it is done in England, for we have no use for the alternate crops which they cultivate in that country, where they fatten stock for the stalls, to feed a dense manufacturing population, and can grow roots and grasses to as great profit as wheat. We can accomplish something by resting our wheat fields occasionally, and the experiment should be thoroughly tried of turning under green crops to refresh them.

When all is said and done, wheat culture is what our farmers must depend on for regular income, for the old world is obliged to look more and more to the new for its supplies, and there is no certainty that the harvests of 1874 will leave the European consumers any less dependent on our surplus than they are now.

We are becoming gradually more independent of railroad communication with the world. The facilities we have, and those we can reasonably command, will each year bring the harvests of the interior nearer to tide water, and so long as the ships of the world will come hither, as they seem glad to do, and European prices are maintained, we can prosper and thrive. The greatest security our producers have that they can command remunerative prices is the farmers' movement for self-protection. They only need harmonious action, and judicious business management, to secure tonnage at a fair rate, and have it come direct to the Columbia river without paying humiliating tribute to San Francisco.

Probably the farmers of Oregon never put their plows into the ground with more cheerfulness than they do this fall. We have much cause for contentment and satisfaction to see our State become suddenly prosperous in the midst of despondency. The future of Oregon never seemed brighter than it does to-day.—Willamette Farmer.

LETTER FROM SALEM.

LABORS OF THE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION—INTERESTING STATISTICS, ETC.

SALEM, Oct. 26, 1873.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The weather, during the past week, has been clear and cool, with sufficient frost in the morning to nip tomato and other plants most effectually. During the past few days there have been a few farmers in the city. They are all busy in putting in their fall grain, and a large breadth will this fall be sown.

I was told a few days ago that Mr Hiram Smith said that he had learned one thing during his candidacy for Congress—"that all of the Republican papers in the valley were bankrupt," and it is evident that one, and probably two, tried to bleed him of a few hundred or thousand dollars.

For the purpose of better protection against the

FIRE FIEND,

The Salem Water Company have planted quite a number of hydrants on several street corners where they would do most good, connected by mains manufactured by the Company in this city.

There was organized in this city, a few months ago, a society known as

"THE SOCIETY OF NATURAL HISTORY,"

Which at present has a goodly number of members, and is constantly receiving accessions. The object of the Society is to collect and preserve all the specimens and curiosities that pertain to the past and present history of Oregon, both geological, mineralogical, entomological, &c., and for the general diffusion of knowledge throughout the State. The Society purchased, for a low figure from Rev. P. S. Knight, of this city, his fine collection of birds, &c., that that gentleman had spent much time and money in collecting and preparing. Since then they have received numerous other specimens, all of which have been duly acknowledged. This brings to mind a remarkable

METEOROLOGICAL STONE,

That fell in the field of a gentleman living near this city, one day while at work and in its descent it struck the end of a solid white oak log, tearing it like a cannon ball and bounding a short distance on the earth, while several smaller pieces that fell at the same time, buried themselves so deep that it was impossible to recover them. I have myself seen this stone, and it shows that it was in an incandescent state when it fell, as described by the gentleman.

THE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION

Is still busily engaged in trying to unravel the mysteries of the assessment rolls of this State, and some of the counties will probably prove to be hard problems to solve, but they are inspired by the hope that the rolls will be more correctly made next year, and that their labors will be accordingly lightened. They certainly are an industrious set of gentlemen, as is shown by the array of figures that they are preparing in tabular form. The Board very kindly allowed me to copy one table, which I send in this letter; although they have not set opposite the average their equalization figures, consequently the table is not finished, but it will show your numerous readers the number and value, and average value in the State, of horses, cattle, sheep and swine, which may prove of interest:

AMUSEMENTS.

THE SISTERS OF CHARITY OF THE HOUSE OF PROVIDENCE,

Respectfully inform the Public that the

ANNUAL FANCY FAIR

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THEIR

Orphan Asylums,

Will take place on the evenings of the 28th, 29th and 30th October,

AT

METROPOLIS HALL,

VANCOUVER, W. T.

THE ENCOURAGEMENT WHICH THE SISTERS have heretofore received, makes them hope that on this, more than on any former occasion, they have a right to expect from their numerous friends and patrons a most generous response to their earnest appeal in behalf of the SEVENTY LITTLE WAIFS depending on them for food and raiment. They think it superfluous at this time to allude to the heavy expenses they are now incurring in the erection of a shelter needed to carry out their charitable purposes; and as many have thereby received an increase in their worldly stores, it is confidently hoped that they will generously come forward and share it liberally with the poor destitute Orphan.

MARY AND I.

'Twas evening in May, and the soft zephyr sighed
Through branches low bending above
My Mary and I, as we wande'd along,
And whisper'd of beauty and love.
"We'll make us a nest like the birdlings," I said,
"And never shall part any more."
"Oh yes," she replied, "and can furnish it nice,
At HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE."

"Fair creature, there's many a wealthier man
Would gladly have you for a bride,
But no one can love you more fondly than I—
My treasure, my beauty, and pride!
Oh, had I a mansion, with carpets of gold
And silver, I'd cover the floor!"
But, smiling, she said, "You can purchase the best
At HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE."

"I'll spread you a couch upon which to recline
When evening shall call us to rest,
Of the fleeciest down"—"but," she said with a sigh,
"I like a hair mattrass the best."
"Then so it shall be, love; and tables inlaid,
And seats from some far distant shore."
"Oh no," she exclaimed, "They have elegant sets
At HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE."

"But, Mary, alas, I must sadly confess
My means are but slender as yet;
To furnish a house in the style you demand
Would hopelessly plunge me in debt—
To ask you to share my poor lodgings and board
Is something that I should deplore."
She said with a smile, "You can buy very cheap
At HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE."

"To-morrow, then, love, let us journey along
To the corner of Alder and Front street—
'Tis numbers 98 and 100, (river side,)
Where lovers so happily meet,
How many fond souls might be severed for years
From those they so fondly adore,
Were it not for the beautiful furniture they have,
At HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE.

They have marble top bureaus and elegant sets
Of Bedroom furniture new,
With center tables and what-nots and mirrors great,
And an endless variety of chairs, not a few.
They do a cash business, and with money in hand
To purchase every style of furniture lower,
Are able to supply all the public demand
At HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE.

We went, Mary and I, and can I ever forget
The pleasure that beamed in her face,
As she gazed at the marvels of beauty displayed
In HURGREN & SHINDLER'S place!
We furnished our home in an elegant style;
Been married a twelve month or more,
And Mary is singing this song to her babe,
Of HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE.

CITY.

IN LIMBO AGAIN.—John Smith the well known forger was tried in the Circuit Court and acquitted. On being released from custody he began industriously to ply his old trade—attaching other men's names to a check. Twice before he has South been arrested and indicted for attempting to pass a forged check on the First National Bank. Each time he wrote the name of J. J. Montgomery, the railroad contractor, and presented it for payment, but the deception was too thin to pass muster with the eagle-eyed cashier. Yesterday he walked boldly into the counting room and presented a check for $400 with the signature of Montgomery thereto, and ordered it cashed. It was drawn for $400 and endorsed by himself. The cashier took the check, immediately detected the forgery and refused to pay it. At this juncture Smith, who had been drinking, commenced to storm and rave, saying that he would publish to the world that the bank was unable to pay its liabilities and was trembling on the verge of bankruptcy. He became very indignant and refused to be placated. At length a policeman was notified and he led John forth like a sheep to the shambles—albeit to the place commonly known as the city jail. He is at present in limbo, but the case will probably come up for examination this morning. The only conclusion to which one can arrive in his case is that the fellow is partially deranged—at least he is suffering acutely from an attack of moral obliquity—an inability to discern clearly the difference between mine and thine.

"LORD OF THE ISLES."—The English ship bearing this euphonious title arrived here yesterday morning in tow of the Dixie Thompson from Astoria. This vessel is under command of Captain Craigie and came from Adelaide, Australia, in sand ballast. The ship was built at Clyde in 1864. She is iron throughout. Her dimensions are: length overall, 200 feet; hold 18 feet; beam, 29 feet; registered capacity, 657 tons; carrying capacity about 1,200 tons. The Lord of the Isles has been principally engaged in the East India traffic. She carried a full assorted cargo from Liverpool to Adelaide. Having discharged her freight, she loaded with sand and was dispatched to San Francisco for orders. She sailed for that port on the 1st of August. On arriving near San Francisco, the Captain received orders from a tug boat to proceed at once to Portland, where she had been chartered by Messrs. Rogers Meyer & Co., to carry to Europe a cargo of grain. Pursuant to orders the vessel sailed for this place. She arrived off the mouth of the Columbia last Saturday, eighty-four days out from Australia. After remaining out a short time, the tug came alongside and the vessel was brought in. She is now lying at the Gas Company's wharf discharging ballast.

DROWNED AT SEA.—On the 12th of September, while the British ship Lord of the Isles was on the passage from Australia to Portland, and in the South Pacific, the second mate of the vessel fell overboard and perished. He was a native of England, aged about twenty-five years, and named John Hammond. At the time the weather was not rough, and had not the mate sustained severe injuries before touching the water, he might have easily been rescued. Hammond, in company with a seaman, went aloft on that day for some purpose. While stepping from one portion of the rigging to another, the mate lost his footing and fell. Although the vessel was lying far over to one side at the moment, Hammond struck, in his descent, the end of one of the yards. He must have been badly stunned, for he never spoke a word, and on reaching the water sank beneath the surface and was seen no more. A life preserver was hastily thrown to him, and a boat lowered at once to rescue the unfortunate man; but after a long and faithful search he was abandoned to his watery grave, and the vessel kept on her course.

SLATE ROOF.—In accordance with the eternal fitness of things, the new Custom House in this city is to be covered with slate stone, and will be, of course, the first and only building in the State which can boast of being roofed with similar material. Originally—so we learn—the intention of the government was to cover the splendid and imposing structure with plated iron fluted. That determination was entirely revised and in substitution a slate roof was settled upon. When the latter conclusion was arrived at, the masonry work of the edifice was almost finished. It was then too late to send East and procure the slate. Fall and winter rains were soon expected, so the Superintendent of construction decided to place on temporarily a shingle roof, which was done. On the coming of fair weather next spring, the present roof will be taken off, and the slate, which is expected to arrive ere that time, is to be placed on. A beautiful slate roof will be in keeping with the building and will enhance the otherwise handsome appearance of that structure.

NEW TUG BOAT.—Mr Fred Congdon, the well known steamboat man, is now having a new steam tug boat constructed a short distance above the lower sawmill. The dimensions of this new craft are: Length, 85 feet; beam, 17 feet; hold, 6 feet. The boiler and engines which are used at present on the Mary Bell will be transferred to the new boat as soon as the work sufficiently progresses. Already the frame for the hull has been set up and the planking will soon follow. In about three weeks, the hull will be in condition to launch. Mr. Bulger is the builder. The boat will be used entirely for towing purposes and with this view is being constructed in the most powerful manner, the timbers for the hull being as large and strong as those on any of the large river steamers. This boat will probably be ready for service in about two months.

GYMNASTIC CLUB.—Last evening a meeting was held at the gallery of Buchtel & Stolte, composed of members from the several base ball clubs of the city. The object of the meeting was to take steps towards the organization of a Gymnastic Club. The objects for which the meeting was called were consummated and a partial organization effected. A proposition from the Turn Verein Society was considered and adopted. This proposition was to the effect that the society lease the club their hall for two nights in the week—Monday and Friday—to furnish all the required gymnastic appliances, light, fuel etc. for a certain stipulated sum. The name adopted by the new organization was the Olympic Gymnasium Club. The following officers were chosen: President, J. R. Wiley; Vice-President, Harry McCraken; Secretary, G. A. Morton.

OSWEGO IRON WORKS.—The new Company organized some time since to work the iron mines near Oswego, mention of which has been frequently made, are pushing their operations vigorously forward. Two hundred men are now constantly employed. This force includes wood choppers, coal burners, teamsters and those engaged in getting out the ore. About 40,000 bushels of coal have already been burned, but smelting will not be commenced until sufficient coal has been obtained to last through the winter. It is estimated that 200,000 bushels will be enough, and it will require some weeks to burn that amount. Operations will probably be in full blast by the 1st of December.

CASE CONTINUED.—The case of Ah Sun, charged with having assaulted Jake Tong You with a knife on Sunday evening, was called in the Police Court yesterday. The counsel for the defense stated that he was unprepared to proceed to trial, as several important witnesses were absent and their presence in Court could not be obtained. With the consent of the Deputy District Attorney the Court continued the case until this morning.

NOT DAMAGED BY [illegible].—All [illegible] of asphalt, which will be used [illegible] the basement floor for the new Custom House, is being discharged from the schooner H. L. [illegible]. It was feared that this portion of the freight had been covered overboard, owing to its weight and unusual [illegible] after the schooner went on the sands, but [illegible] a pound was lost or in any wise damaged.

NEW ENGINES, ETC.—The pattern makers at the Willamette Iron Works have been making the wooden models for the cylinders of the new steamboat which the W. R. [illegible] are having built. In the course of a few weeks the engines will be cast and work on the new boiler commenced.

SOCIABLE.—The ladies of the First Baptist Church will give one of their pleasant sociables in the basement of the church on Wednesday evening. All are cordially invited to attend.

CLEANTHE GROVE NO 4.—This Grove, of the United Ancient Order of Druids, held the regular election of officers last evening with the following result: N. A., Geo. I. DePrans; V. A., H. D. Chapman; R. S., L. I. A. Shaw; F. A., Treasurer, J. C. Brigham; I. G., J. Farrow; Trustee, W. H. Butts. The regular installation of these officers will take place next week.

SOCIABLE.—The officers, teachers and friends of the North Portland M. E. Sunday School are preparing for a social gathering at their hall corner of D and Ninth streets. There is to be music and refreshments, and as this is their first assembly of this kind they look for a large attendance of their friends. It will take place to-morrow, Wednesday evening.

ANOTHER PATIENT.—William Cliff, a colored man, was taken into custody yesterday on the charge of insanity. When found Cliff was in a house in an entire state of nudity, dancing about over the floor. He was taken before the County Judge, examined by a physician and adjudged insane. Yesterday afternoon he was conveyed to the Insane Asylum.

SECOND CROP.—Mr James Furlow, who resides in the vicinity of Taylor's bridge, has a large pear tree of the Bartlett variety which is now bearing the second crop of fruit this year. Earlier in the season Mr Furlow dried a considerable quantity of the fruit taken from the tree and it is now producing some very excellent eating pears.

THANKSGIVING BALL.—Almost ever since the organization of the Emmet Guard that military company has given an anniversary ball on the evening of Thanksgiving. We learn that in conformity with this custom the company are making arrangements to hold a grand ball on the evening of the 27th prox.

SENTENCED.—Isaac Cohagan, the colored boot black who was convicted of assault with intent to kill a few days ago, has been sentenced to pay a fine of $250. If unable to liquidate he is to be incarcerated in the county jail until the fine was settled at the rate of $2 per diem.

ALARM OF FIRE.—The bursting of a gas pipe yesterday morning in a building near the corner of Morrison and First streets caused an alarm of fire. The Department was on hand with characteristic alacrity, but there was no need for a gallon of water to be thrown.

BUSINESS CHANGE.—We learn that Mr Henry Dosch, for a long time connected with J. Kraemer & Co., has purchased the interest of George B. Cook in the Occidental Hotel. He will probably enter into the duties in connection with Mr William H. Andrus, at the hotel above named.

TO THE EAST SIDE.—The English ship City of Paris, which has been receiving grain at Carter's wharf for the last week, was towed to the east side wharf yesterday afternoon. Considerable grain will be taken on board at the dock when the vessel is to proceed down the river.

SOCIAL GATHERING.—The ladies of the Baptist Church will give a sociable in the vestry of the Church to-morrow (Wednesday) night. A pleasant occasion, as usual, may be anticipated.

TRAGEDY AT TILLAMOOK.

A fearful tragedy was enacted at Tillamook last Friday evening about 7 o'clock, near Miller's store. The parties engaged in the terrible melee were named respectively Drost and Hauxhurst. The result of the rencounter was the sudden death of Drost. A gentleman just from the scene, and who saw Hauxhurst a few minutes after the perpetration of the frightful tragedy, gave us the following particulars of the sanguinary affair.

Drost kept a small restaurant near the landing, and Hauxhurst is a sort of fisherman and general laborer. It seems that he had been in the habit of making Drost's restaurant a sort of rendezvous. He became such a frequenter of the house that Drost grew jealous of his attentions to Mrs Drost, and imagined that a too great degree of intimacy existed between the parties. Whether or not there existed just grounds for such a supposition our informant could not state, but the lady in question bears a good reputation and is a hard working woman. At all events Drost was driven by his blind jealousy to a degree of desperation and forbade Hauxhurst to enter his house again. It was stated, as was subsequently elicited at the preliminary examination, that Drost had made frequent threats against the life of Hauxhurst. Last Friday Mrs Drost learned that Hauxhurst intended to call at the house in the evening of that day. Knowing the feelings of her husband towards Hauxhurst she sent word for him to stay away. But he did not heed the warning and came to the house a little after dark. Drost was at home, and no sooner did Hauxhurst enter the room than he sprang at him and the two soon became engaged in a desperate struggle. Hauxhurst, although wiry and powerfully built, was not equal to cope with Drost, who was a man of immense physical strength. As a consequence Drost knocked his antagonist down several times and was pummeling him severely. In the struggle on the floor Hauxhurst managed to get possession of a large butcher knife. He plunged this terrible weapon into his adversary some thirteen times, literally cutting him to pieces and causing instantaneous death. The terrible affray was witnessed by a man named Beam and the wife of the murdered man. So suddenly was the work of death wrought that Drost hardly uttered a word. When Hauxhurst arose from his gory labor he was a most horribly sickening and bloody spectacle at which to look. Immediately after the killing, Hauxhurst was arrested, but at the conclusion of the preliminary examination was discharged, it being shown clearly that Drost had threatened to kill him, and that the stabbing was done in pure self defense.

Hauxhurst is a half breed, who in general is peaceably disposed when sober, but turbulent, quarrelsome and desperate when under the influence of drink. He is regarded as a dangerous man, and has been engaged in several bloody affrays. Some years ago he had a difficulty with a young man in Salem, in which he stabbed him several times, resulting in death a few days after. For this Hauxhurst was tried and sentenced to the penitentiary for ten years. Subsequently he was pardoned out at the expiration of four years, and has been residing at Tillamook for the last three years. Drost sustained rather the character of a bully, but was not regarded as a man of violence or of very bad disposition. The sanguinary affair created great excitement in that vicinity.

PORTLANDERS IN CALIFORNIA.

A young gentleman of this city, who is now on a brief visit to San Francisco, sends us among other notes, the following names of persons well known here, but who are now in that city: Mr Bell, formerly clerk in the Subsistence Department under Major Bell, is conductor on a street car in San Francisco. Mr W L Halsey, Gardner Elliott, and Col A P Dennison are quartered at the Occidental Hotel. E E Root, formerly of the O and C railroad, accompanied by his wife, started overland for Ohio a few days ago. Mr I. Hopkins, ex Conductor of the O and C R R, is at the Russ House. E A Brown, formerly Express Messenger, is employed by the W U Telegraph Company. Frank Johnson, of East Portland, is conducting an office for the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company. Wm Martin is connected with the Southern Pacific R R Co. Dave McKenny is employed on the Western Division of the C P R R Co. Isaac Barman has just returned from a trip through the interior, where he has met with splendid success in disposing of his Porter Box Patent. Harry McCormack is connected with a leading stationery house. Wm Ware, formerly of the O and C R R, is on the Wadsworth Division of the U P R R. W T Gilliham is in the employ of a leading street railway. Weather cool. Hotels all crowded. Considerable interest is being taken in regard to the four-mile race for $20,000 to be contested by Thad Stephens, Joe Daniels, Joe Hubbard and True Blue. Stevens won the four mile race against Daniels last week for a $5,000 purse. This promises to be the most exciting race ever run on this coast, excepting the one at Sacramento by Occident, American Girl, Goldsmith Maid and Pinchback.

FASHION NOTES.

Street suits should not more than touch the ground, and it is still better if they are allowed to clear it.

The back hair is still combed up from the nape of the neck, but its bare look is taken away by the chatelaine braid.

The new caprice for day wear is to have a single narrow chatelaine braid down the back of the head, with two or three soft puffs on top and a curly bang in front.

Among the unique jewels are those of finely cut jet associated with garnets or other bright red stones. These are said to be very effective, and popularity is predicted for them.

In bonnets the colors will generally be somber, such as plum, indigo, garnet, crimson, maroon, Cuban brown, bronze, dark olive, Prussian blue, Russian gray, sea green, sage, etc.

The shapes of hats will be of great variety, resembling the mirror-like or directoire style, with large crowns and flaring fronts, giving ample opportunity for display of inside trimming.

The Persian jewelry is a combination of brilliant stones of various colors set in rich French. The designs are miniature copies of intricate figures represented in Persian scarfs, shawls, carpets, etc.

Feathers will be worn in the shape of long plumes or short tips. Wings are no longer to be used. Ribbons will form a very large part of the trimmings. Two-colored ribbons for the most part of satin or gros grain.

A charming hat of pale green velvet has ribbons of a yet paler shade, and the most bewitching flowers which pretend to be sewed on, but which we are certain only dropped there a moment before we had looked.

Notwithstanding the fact that dresses are made smaller and shorter than previously, there is no visible reduction in the quantity of cloth used, for what is saved in one place is used in some newly introduced style.

Smooth hair is once more in fashion, though it heightens the beauty of the new arrangement by pasting the waves flatly with pomade or bandoline. Side locks in front of the ear worn turned toward the face instead of backward.

In dress goods the popular colors are olive brown, olive green, reseda and navy blue, the latter decidedly in the ascendant. The redingote is almost entirely to be discarded and its place taken by the double-breasted tight fitting polonaise.

Parisian ladies retain the high puffs and braids on the top of the head with the back hair unrelieved by plaits or tresses, but this style is unbecoming to the slender faces of American women, hence the desire here to return to lower coiffures.

Beautiful suits for morning, either for house or street, are made of the new dark calicoes. Those with black grounds brightened by a shell or star of yellow, or else dark blue with stripes or lightning struck lines of white, make up most stylishly. They have the double breasted redingote belted with two rows of smoked pearl buttons down the front and a single skirt with two lapped gathered flounces.

A garment destined to increase in popularity is the sleeveless spencer in all materials, faille, satin, velvet, and for the winter entirely of fur, grebe or ermine for light full dress, and mink or black fur for darker and more simple toilettes. The shape of the spencer is quite plain, like that of a close fitting vest, long and with large flat basques. It will also be made of velvet, edged with a narrow band of fur or feathers. Ostrich feathers short and of the natural color will be most frequently used for this kind of trimming. The natural color, it will be remembered, is a dirty ecru.

The variety of Foreign and Domestic Fruits to be seen at W. ASCHENHEIM'S, 120 First Street, is immense for this time of the year. Go and see it.

EARTH'S ANGELS

I never saw an angel
Except the one in books
I don't believe a mortal
Knows how an angel looks
We guess at something misty
With trailing wings of white
With amber tresses floating,
And garments strangely bright

But I believe earth's angels
Walk here in mortal guise
Though we discern but dimly
Through heavy lidded eyes

I can remember angels
Who seemed like common folks
Who wore old fashioned bonnets
And faded winter cloaks
Who came when dire disaster
Crowded lesser home mishaps
Or tired young claimants crowded
The dear maternal lap;

With curving arms wide open
To take the weary in
With patient love to listen
To childish want or sin--
What better thing could angels
For childish sinners do,
Than listen to their story
And bid them promise new?

I think of fireside angels
Upon whose faded hair
There shone no crown of glory
And yet the crown was there,
When tender love true-hearted,
Forgave the wrongs it knew
And patient voice gave answer
The days of trials through

Ah, me! the childish angel
Who beckons as I write
Perchance I should not know him
In mystic robes of white.
He w[illegible] a school boy's jacket,
And [illegible], and boots, to me;
And when we talk at twilight
His [illegible] rests on my knee.

There are dear mother-angels--
We each, perchance, know one--
Whose robes of better glory
Are daily being spun
With loving hands to guide us
With loving speech to cheer
Said I not well, earth's angels
Walk daily with us here?

[illegible] A VILLAIN

[illegible] MAKE THEIR PREPARATIONS IN DANBURY

The man [illegible] the way is in Ridgefield [illegible] his Uncle Joseph. He took his wife and boy with him. They left on the [illegible] M. There is nothing very remarkable about this; but the preparations and [illegible] away was so natural that we [illegible] speak of it. That night be[illegible] up until twelve o'clock, getting [illegible] and as the train was [illegible] they got up the next morning [illegible]. His wife got up first, and looked out [illegible] to see if it was going to rain, and was [illegible] and as it was too dark at [illegible] objects you couldn't [illegible] probable that she was [illegible] the bed and endeavored to dress [illegible] but not succeeding, owing to a [illegible], in getting the boy's [illegible] boy's legs, he gave up the ef[illegible] and fell to [illegible] himself. After break[illegible] he fell asleep, and tipped [illegible], he looked out of the win[illegible] decided it would rain, sure, and [illegible] looked out of another window, [illegible] a belief that it was going to [illegible]. Pretty soon he went down [illegible] and came back again to [illegible] was at about eight o'clock [illegible] he came over to ask [illegible] it would rain. Twenty min[illegible] the party next door what [illegible]. At twenty-five [illegible] the opinion of a little [illegible], and at half-past eight [illegible] body on the topic. [illegible] his wife, having twice re[illegible] and twice removed the [illegible] her polingote and jockey; [illegible] one hand and a smell[illegible], took up a position in [illegible], which was due [illegible] ten minutes, city time. After [illegible] silent attitude for [illegible] up and came over [illegible] she thought the black breadth [illegible] too full. The lady consulted [illegible] examination of the [illegible] and was briefly able to make [illegible] that the black [illegible] a bit too full. With her sus[illegible] the wife of the man across the [illegible] there just in time [illegible] from a tub of rain water, [illegible] promptly fallen on discov[illegible]. He was [illegible] would have emptied that [illegible] and set fire to the [illegible] not live across the way.) [illegible] o'clock, and three-quarters [illegible] the train was to start, it was [illegible] the arrival of the hack[illegible] that worthy was sc[illegible] for. The man took up his [illegible] and the next corner, and [illegible] he moved with com[illegible]. His wife took advantage [illegible] ask our wife if she [illegible] like it, which that lady con[illegible] she [illegible] Then the [illegible] out of the window and [illegible], but saying no indica[illegible] asked her husband if the [illegible]. In thirteen seconds she [illegible] again, and asked him where [illegible] did'nt know, and as it was [illegible] that he should keep mov[illegible] gate and the corner if the [illegible], there was nothing else to [illegible] the progeny herself, which [illegible] was in the backyard, running in [illegible] with another boy, a doubled bar[illegible] and was completing an order for [illegible] his mother lighted upon [illegible] to the house was in much less [illegible] any boy could reasonably expect to [illegible]. By the time he had got into the fourth [illegible] the hackman came, and drew up in [illegible] of the house, as also did the children of [illegible] neighborhood. The arrival of the [illegible] for general and complete [illegible]. The progeny was poked into the [illegible] by his mother, and immediately pulled [illegible] by his father, who cuffed him on the [illegible] what he meant. Where[illegible], and the progeny [illegible] his eyes on his nose, and kept them [illegible] the family was loaded and the [illegible] the man of the house com[illegible] to think of the things left behind, and [illegible] minutes were employed in recov[illegible]. Finally the hack drove [illegible] that something was [illegible] and firmly asserting that nobody [illegible] went away at such short notice, and [illegible], as she was obliged to. Then [illegible] of the children who failed to catch on [illegible], as the [illegible] drove away, fell to calling [illegible] all ones what names they [illegible] think of in the hurry, and the women of [illegible] neighborhood moved back from their [illegible], where they had been posted for the [illegible], and came out-doors to exchange [illegible] over the fence.

G[illegible] NOTES

A bull-frog, weighing fifteen pounds and a half, is said to have been caught lately in Cayuga Lake, and sold to a French epicure for six dollars.

An Indiana judge has decided that a married woman cannot become a bankrupt. This is one of the instances where maiden ladies have an opportunity to get square.

A gentleman travelling in Ireland said to a [illegible] importunate beggar "You have lost all [illegible] teeth" The beggar quietly answered "An' it's time I parted with um, when I'd nothing for um to do"

At the recent Sheriff's sale of a suspended menagerie at Shreveport, La., the rhinoceros brought $5,600, the baby elephant $3 500 the [illegible] and hyena $370, the lion and lioness $650, and a cage of intelligent monkeys and communicative birds $202

A young lady in Lancaster has the initials Y. M. C. A. engraved on one corner of her visiting cards which she hands to certain gentlemen visitors. At first they suppose she belongs to the Young Men's Christian Association, but it is not long before they rightly construe the letters to mean "You May Come A[illegible]in."

If ignorance is bliss, there must have been an uncommon amount of happiness experienced in the Nisi Prius Court at Liverpool during the trial of a case, a few days before the close of the Assizes "The case," says the Post, "had proceeded for about two hours when his [illegible] showing some signs of mystification among the jury, asked them if they [illegible] the case; to which they replied that they did not in the [illegible] degree. [illegible] must candidly confess he did not [illegible]. Latest advices from the East in financial matters are both important and interesting. The expression of the Secretary of the Treasury that he may find it convenient in the course of business this week to pay out $500,000 in silver and the actual payment of $5[illegible],000 in silver at par in Chicago on the 24th inst, certainly seem to indicate a general belief that events are about to culminate in some way very materially affecting the finances of the country. If there is really a desire on the part of the Government [illegible] of the business community in general to return to that condition [illegible] what is called [illegible] for would be worth [illegible] we might expect that under present circumstances we might quietly drift to that [illegible] without very serious wreckage. As to the policy which the government will pursue nothing as yet seems to be very definitely settled upon, and it is more over doubtful if the business men of the country desire an immediate return to specie payments even if there were no serious difficulties in the way. They think there will be a general shrinkage in values as the result of adopting the world's basis as a measure of values. Therefore many will be found who prefer to wait till they shall be in better condition--till they shall be out of debt and then they will be ready to do away with the thing of calling 90 cents a dollar. But waiting till everybody is out of debt we would probably wait forever. The future immediate or remote is a matter of considerable doubt though the prevailing impression is that the premium on gold will suffer a still further reduction before the market assumes a settled condition.

In the meantime our local market is unchanged and transactions are quite limited to day as nothing seems certain of to morrow. Legal tender notes are comparatively scarce and [illegible] demand [illegible] current rates.

Home Produce Market.

We notice considerable activity under this head in the opening day of the week but no important change in quotations is furnished. Wheat is still coming forward keeping the local warehouses nearly filled notwithstanding the large shipments made during the fortnight just past. For round lots exporters are offering $1 [illegible] cents [illegible] to hand slowly and are firm at [illegible], with a fair demand. Butter [illegible] is more [illegible] after. The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering

Horrible Di[illegible]

How many thousands of [illegible], both male and female are there who are suffering out a [illegible] existence from the effects of secret indulgence [illegible] from virus [illegible] into the system! Look at those pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and [illegible] broken-down constitutions, [illegible] the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of [illegible]. In this horrid situation the [illegible] suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends tend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible, life-destroying maladies, see that [illegible] cared for and cured before it be too late. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of these charlatans

[illegible] W[illegible]

Some of the self-styled doctors whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, tradesmen and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, [illegible] carriers, intelligence office keepers etc. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry--it will cost you nothing, and may save you many [illegible] for as advertising physicians in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are.
